Big City Fun

by Kelly Hashway

As Emily stepped off the train into Penn Station, she looked around at all the people rushing here, there, and everywhere. Emily clutched her older sister's hand and wished she was back home in Pennsylvania.

"This way, Em," Diana said, ushering Emily through the crowd and onto the streets of New York City.

Emily closed her eyes, trying to block out the city noise and picture her peaceful backyard at home filled with giant trees and the field of lush, green grass.

"Open your eyes, silly. You don't want to miss this," Diana said.

"Keep up girls," Dad said, taking Mom's hand and leading them down the avenue.

Emily peeked out one eye. People were everywhere, and the buildings were huge. "Aren't there any trees around here?"

Diana laughed. "I know you like it back home, but look around. The city is awesome. Look at all the stores and the displays."

Emily looked up. She was used to billboards back home, but these were colorful and animated. Before she knew it, she was smiling. "Where are we going?" she asked her mom. Her parents had kept the reason for the trip a secret, saying it was a surprise.

“You’ll see.” Her mom smiled back at her.

They kept walking, and Emily took in all the sights. Everything seemed bigger here. Taller buildings, more people, brighter signs. Finally, they reached a store and walked inside.

“Whoa!” Emily said. She looked around the toy store in amazement. There were rides in the store. And not little ones either. “This is like a toy store and a carnival in one!”

Emily and Diana went on every ride, and they even played a giant keyboard on the floor by jumping on the keys. Emily had never had so much fun. By the time they left, it was getting dark.

“Let’s find a nice place to eat dinner,” Dad said.

But Emily just stared at the city all lit up like a Christmas tree. “This is incredible.” She was still happy she lived in the country, but she knew she wanted to visit the city again very soon.
